

The Spider Web - The Well + The Vessel

Another month... another pendulum pull and two cards showing up. They were stuck together, so the message is layered. Right now, as we are watching old systems crumble and new ways being constructed; the most potent thing you can do is really stay grounded in what matters to you. This is The Well. The deep, true things that maintain, nourish and provide life sustaining 'water'. Whether that is your family, your belief system, nature, your friends, your moral compass, or all of these things. This Well is crucial to your connection to self. As you gaze into the well, you can dip your hands and fill your sacred Vessel with these vital nutrients. The Vessel is a container. Receiving and collecting all the bounty of The Well. As your Vessel becomes filled, it overflows and is shared with your community. Which, by its goodness, returns that energy back to the Well. This month is about awareness of both what feeds you and your willingness to BE fed and cared for. And how that interplay reflects your relationship to sharing with your wider orbit. Do you know what is in your Well? Is your Vessel willing to be gifted? How do you share what is in your Vessel?

This month, I invite you to create a sacred space.. a vessel space that you will fill over the course of the month. Find a bowl, a vase, a cup, any container that you wish to represent your personal vessel. Feel free to smoke cleanse, wash carefully and anoint with oil, etc; anything that will denote this is a sacred space for the month of March. Put this someplace prominent. Coffee table? Kitchen counter? Window over your sink? Any place you will see it daily. And each day.. find one bit or bauble that feels like a gift from your Well. A flower? A piece of jewelry? A stray bit of dog hair? Anything that when you see it feels like nourishment. Joy. Your heart. Fill your vessel with things that remind you of what you believe in. The things that matter to you. That center your existence in this wild and wonderful chaotic world. How fast does your vessel fill? Do you struggle to find things in your environment that represent your Well? Do you need to bring more of these things into your physical environment? Conversely.. did your Vessel fill up quickly? Do you continue to cram them in your container or do you start to find others who need the gifts within? Maybe you choose a little bauble and gift it to someone else since your vessel found itself full? May your month overflow!

We are vessels that fill from the well and share with others.
